
The J.W. Fanning Lecture is scheduled for November 14, 2007. The guest speaker will be Ken Stewart who was appointed Commissioner, Georgia Department of Economic Development by Governor Sonny Perdue in January 2007. As chief marketing officer for the state of Georgia, Mr. Stewart leads the state in efforts to recruit new businesses and expand existing ones; grow the state’s tourism, international trade and entertainment industries; and support the growth of small businesses and entrepreneurs. Previously, Mr. Stewart served as director for the Georgia Forestry Commission (GFC) for slightly over two years, where he focused the agency and the state’s 24 million acres of forest land on new markets and products such as biofuels, as well as niche and specialty products. Commissioner Stewart’s lecture will address his vision for the economic development of Georgia, specifically as it relates to agribusinesses and rural economic development.

Greetings from the Department Head

This newsletter is short because we mainly want to convey the information for events surrounding the upcoming Fanning Lecture. The speaker will be Ken Stewart, former Director of the Georgia Forestry Commission and current Commissioner for the Georgia Department of Economic Development. We are lucky to have such a great speaker who will be addressing the role of agribusiness and rural development in the future economic development of Georgia. Please attend if you can. You can also find news on two of our alumni who won prestigious awards recently. If you have news to include in future newsletters, send it our way; we love to keep in touch with our alums. Also, without belaboring the point, we have enclosed an envelope you can use to make donations to the department's various funds. Please continue to bless us with your generous financial support. There is much we do that we cannot do without your help as those funds all support things that we cannot legally do with our other funds. We are making the appeal now to be at the front of your year-end giving line, so please reward the early bird. Thanks and I hope to see you on November 14 at the Fanning Lecture.
