

Department of Poultry Science

College of Agricultural & Environmental Sciences

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

POSITION ANNOUNCEMENT Assistant Professor - Poultry Nutrition

POSITION DESCRIPTION: The Department of Poultry Science at the University of Georgia invites applications for an academic year (9-month) tenure-track faculty position at the Assistant Professor rank with a research (75%) and instruction (25%) appointment in poultry nutrition. The successful applicant will be expected to develop innovative and successful teaching and research programs and pursue extramural funding related to research and/or teaching through interdisciplinary, multi-institutional research program with UGA College of Engineering and other potential collaborators at UGA and other institutions. The individual selected for this position will be expected to develop a contemporary program in poultry nutrition. Potential research foci could include, but are not limited to, nutrient interactions, metabolism, energy partitioning, feed ingredients, nutrient requirements and feed milling technology. The successful applicant must develop a strong graduate training program. Teaching responsibilities may include departmental undergraduate courses such as poultry production and, at graduate level, bioenergetics and amino acids.

The University of Georgia (www.uga.edu) is a land/sea grant institution located 90 miles northeast of Atlanta. The Department of Poultry Science has exceptional research and live bird facilities, including a hatchery, feed mill, and pilot-scale poultry processing facility. Excellent opportunities for collaboration exist within the department and across the University of Georgia with units such as ecology, forestry, and veterinary and biomedical sciences, as well as local USDA and EPA scientists.

QUALIFICATIONS: Applicants must possess a Ph.D. in poultry science or a nutrition related field no later than December 2017. Demonstrated grantsmanship, research and teaching experience (1 or more years) is preferred.

APPLICATIONS: Applicants must submit: (1) letter of application, (2) a summary that addresses teaching and research interests, (3) curriculum vita, (4) provide at least three names for possible of reference, and (5) Graduate School transcripts to <http://facultyjobs.uga.edu/postings/2383>. Applicant screening with full applications will begin by September 18, 2017; however, screening will continue until the position is filled. Only applications with all the required documentation will be reviewed. Questions regarding the position should be addressed to Dr. Todd Applegate by email at applegt@uga.edu.

The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation or protected veteran status.