HONESTY

You Can Be Honest!

Some things are hard to do and telling the truth when you could get in trouble can be hard. Being honest can be easy and it is important that you are an honest person. Not being honest affects what people think about you. Being honest shows that others can trust you and that you will do what you say. It would not be right if someone else gets in trouble for something you have done wrong. It is not honest to cheat when playing games or taking a test at school. You feel better when you tell the truth and you show that you are a person of character. When you pledge your "head," you are saying that you will be honest and tell the truth. When you pledge your "heart," you say I will do the right thing. When you pledge your "hands," you say I am willing to help and being truthful is helpful. And when you pledge your "health," you say I will be healthy and not telling the truth can cause you to worry who will find out and that could make you sick. Be honest and truthful and you will be a person that can be trusted and a leader in your family, your club, your school, and your community.

I Pledge My....

- Head To clearing thinking
- Heart To greater loyalty
- Hands and... To larger service
- Health To better living, for my club, my community, my country & my world

4-H Awards Program

Project Achievement Participants

Remember !

The 4-H annual awards program will be May 7, 2011. You will be recognized for your efforts and participation in this year's event. The overall County winners from each 4-H program area will be announced at the awards program. The winners will be selected from the list of all participants and based on their placing and project scores. Please see your club leader for your invitation to the event.

Wow! You might be one of the County winners!
